Introduction

Scottish Child Payment has been introduced for low-income families with children aged under six. It is intended to provide regular, additional financial support for families already in receipt of qualifying benefits to assist with the costs of caring for a child.

Social Security Scotland enabled clients to apply from 9 November 2020 in advance of the benefit being launched on 15 February 2021 to help manage the expected demand. Applicants began to receive a decision from 15 February onwards, with the first payments made to clients from the end of February 2021.

This publication provides information on applications and payments for Scottish Child Payment from 9 November to 30 September. It includes figures for approximately eleven months of applications, and around eight months of payments. This publication also includes information on the number of children in receipt of Scottish Child Payment.

The Background section has further detail about the payment and its application process.

As this publication reports on applications to the end of September 2021, it spans the period when the Covid-19 pandemic was present in Scotland.

All tables and charts referred to within this publication can be found at https://www.gov.scot/collections/social-security-scotland-stats-publications/

These statistics are being published as experimental statistics. Experimental statistics are defined in the Code of Practice for Statistics as "new official statistics undergoing evaluation. They are published in order to involve users and stakeholders in their development and as a means to build in quality at an early stage." The UK Statistics Authority has not yet assessed these statistics. They have not been designated as National Statistics³.

Main findings

Applications by month

- Overall, 134,080 applications were received up until 30 September 2021, with 4,215 received in July, 4,640 in August, and 3,795 in September [Table 1, Chart 1].

- In total, 129,665 applications had been processed as of 30 September 2021. Of these, 88% were authorised, 10% were denied and the remaining 2% were withdrawn [Table 1].

- The monthly breakdowns of processed applications between November 2020 and March 2021 vary in part due to the way in which applications were processed throughout the application window. With denied applications being flagged and set aside for processing after the launch of the benefit on 15 February, there was a 99% authorisation rate in the months before February 2021 – all except a small number of withdrawals [Table 1].

- In February and March 2021, as well as the standard processing of applications, client advisors worked their way through the batch of denials highlighted during the application window [Table 1].

- In July 2021 there were 5,485 applications processed, 4,700 in August and 3,790 in September. The proportion of applications authorised was 77% in July, 72% in August and 75% in September 2021 [Table 1].

- Since April, Social Security Scotland have been focussing on processing a number of outstanding applications where applicants had not provided requested evidence. This is likely to have contributed to the decrease in the percentage of authorised applications observed in recent months [Table 1].

- For more information on how applications were handled before the official launch of Scottish Child Payment, see the Application authorisation and payment section of the background notes.
Application channel (method of application)

- Around 93% of applications received by 30 September 2021 were made online and 5% were made through a telephone application. A small proportion of applications were made through paper application [Table 2].

Applications by age of applicant

- Around 95% of applications were made by people aged 18 to 44 by end of September 2021. Less than 1% of applications were made by people under 18 and 3% by people aged 45 or over [Table 3].

Applications by local authority and non-Scottish postcodes

- Applications were received from people living in all 32 local authorities in Scotland. The highest number of applications were 22,115 from Glasgow City, 10,715 from North Lanarkshire, and 10,155 from Fife [Table 4].
- While the percentage of processed applications authorised was 88% overall, this varied between local authorities, ranging from the lowest at 83% in Na h-Eileanan Siar to the highest at 89% in Dundee City, Fife, Glasgow City, North Ayrshire and South Ayrshire [Table 4].

- Of all applications received, less than 1% were made by people living at non-Scottish postcodes [Table 4].
- More information on deriving the local authorities for applications can be found in the Geography section.

Processing Times

- Social Security Scotland enabled clients to apply in advance of Scottish Child Payment being launched on 15 February 2021 to help manage the expected demand and allow more time to process applications. Anyone applying during the application window was made aware that they would not receive a decision until after 15 February 2021, and that the first payments would be made to clients from the end of February 2021 onwards.
- Processing times for any applications processed during the application window are calculated between the application date and the date the client advisor processed the application – meaning they do not included the final automatic eligibility check that was undertaken when the benefit officially launched on 15 February 2021.
- In total, around 15% of applications that were received since 9 November 2020 and decided by 30 September 2021 were processed within ten working days. Around 67% of all applications took 21 days or more to be processed [Table 5].
- The median average processing time for applications peaked in February 2021 at 55 working days as Social Security Scotland worked through the large volume of applications which were received in the early period of the application window.
- Average processing times were 8 working days in July 2021 – the lowest since the benefit opened for applications in November 2020. By September 2021 average processing times had risen to 15 working days. [Table 5].

Payments

- Between 15 February when the benefit officially launched and 30 September 2021, the total value of Scottish Child Payments issued was £31.4 million [Table 6].

4 The median average is the middle value of an ordered dataset, or the point at which half of the values are higher and half of the values are lower.
By the end of September 2021, Social Security Scotland had issued 622,395 payments to 89,545 individual clients [Table 6, Table 7].

As it is a recurring payment, over time there will be flows in both directions regarding the number of children in receipt of Scottish Child Payment i.e. children who are no longer eligible dropping off, and new children being added to the active caseload.

As of 30 September 2021, it is estimated that 106,000 children were in receipt of Scottish Child Payment. This is a derived statistic calculated based on the total value of payments issued in the 28-day period from 3 September to 30 September 2021, which was £4.2 million [Table 7].

Previous releases included a figure on the total number of children to have benefited from at least one payment. Following a review of the underlying data and methods used to calculate this statistic, a decision was taken to remove it from the publication tables. More information on this decision and how these figures are calculated can be found in the Methodology and definitions section of the background notes.

Payments were issued to clients living in all 32 local authorities in Scotland. The highest total value of payments was made to clients in Glasgow City at £5.2 million, followed by North Lanarkshire at £2.5 million and Fife at £2.4 million [Table 8].

Re-determinations and appeals

Management information collected manually by the Client Experience team at Social Security Scotland indicates that 400 re-determinations were requested by 30 September 2021. This represents around 0.2% of the total number of decisions made during this period [Table 9].

By 30 September 2021, 385 re-determination requests had been decided. Of these 150 were allowed or partially allowed, 100 were disallowed, and 135 were withdrawn [Table 9].

The median average number of days to respond to a re-determination request was nine working days [Table 9].

In total, 15 appeals were received by 30 September 2021. Management information on the outcome of appeals has not been included in this publication to prevent the disclosure of small cohorts.
Background to Scottish Child Payment

As a result of the Scotland Act 2016 a wide range of powers, including welfare powers, have now been transferred to the Scottish Government and Scottish Parliament.

Scottish Child Payment was introduced through secondary legislation, using the powers to top up a reserved benefit contained in section 79 of the Social Security Scotland Act 2018.

Social Security Scotland is the executive agency of Scottish Government responsible for delivering social security benefits for Scotland.

On 3 November 2020 the Cabinet Secretary for Social Security and Older People announced that Scottish Child Payment would open for applications from 9 November and the benefit would start from 15 February 2021.

Further details about the benefit can be found at https://www.mygov.scot/scottish-child-payment/.

Scottish Child Payment

Scottish Child Payment is a new benefit which has been introduced to tackle child poverty in Scotland. It is intended to help low-income families with the costs of raising a child.

Currently the payment is available to parents or carers with one or more children under the age of six. There are no limits on the number of eligible children supported by Scottish Child Payment and families will be able to apply for £10 per child, per week.

Scottish Child Payment is administered by Social Security Scotland through an application-based process, and is paid on a four-weekly basis.

Social Security Scotland remain committed to rolling out the benefit to families with children under 16, planned for the end of 2022. This is subject to necessary data on qualifying benefits being received from the Department for Work and Pensions.

Scottish Child Payment does not count as earned income in the calculation of any other UK or Scottish Government benefits that the applicant, or any person in their household, currently receive.

The payment can be used for any purpose by the recipient and for example could help with the cost of childcare, nappies or other essentials.
Eligibility

A person may be eligible for Scottish Child Payment if all of the following apply:

- They live in Scotland
- They or their partner are getting certain benefits or payments
- They or their partner are the main person looking after a child who’s under 6 years old

The main person looking after the child (if any) might want to complete the application form, and use their bank details for payment.

The qualifying benefits are:

- Child Tax Credit
- Income Support
- Pension Credit
- Working Tax Credit
- Universal Credit
- Income-based Jobseeker’s Allowance
- Income-related Employment and Support Allowance.

Application and decision making process

Applications can be made online, by phone, and by paper form (‘application channel’).

At the beginning of the application process, applicants are asked whether they would like to also apply for Best Start Grant and Best Start Foods at the same time as they apply for Scottish Child Payment. To keep things as simple as possible for the client, if they choose to also apply for Best Start Grant and Best Start foods they are required to complete only one application form. Applicants can also apply for Scottish Child Payment and Best Start Grant and Best Start Foods separately should they wish to do so.

In terms of processing and the subsequent reporting of Official Statistics, the joint application can be thought of as two separate applications; one for Scottish Child Payment and one for Best Start Grant and Best Start Foods. For this reason, only Scottish Child Payment applications are reported on in this publication. Official Statistics on Best Start Grant and Best Start Foods applications can be found at: https://www.socialsecurity.gov.scot/publications.

Social Security Scotland processes each application received and makes a decision whether to approve or deny the application. An application will be denied if the client is not eligible to receive Scottish Child Payment. An application will be authorised if the client is eligible and provides the appropriate evidence to receive Scottish Child Payment. Applicants may also withdraw their application before a decision is made.
Applicants can choose to provide supporting evidence when making an application by post or through online document upload. If an applicant does not provide all the evidence required for an application, they will be contacted by a client advisor and asked to provide this. Once this evidence has been received, Social Security Scotland aims to make a decision as soon as possible with payments following soon thereafter.

To help manage the demand expected when Scottish Child Payment officially launched on 15 February 2021, Social Security Scotland enabled clients to apply in advance of the benefit being introduced, from 9 November 2020. Anyone applying for Scottish Child Payment in this application window was made aware that they would not receive a decision until after 15 February 2021, and that the first payments would be made to clients from the end of February 2021 onwards.

Social Security Scotland processed applications throughout the application window, where the outcomes were temporary and subject to change until a final eligibility check on 15 February when the benefit officially launched. During this time if a client advisor assessed an application as authorised – subject to this check – the month of decision recorded would reflect the month the client advisor initially processed the application.

Due to the design of Social Security Scotland’s case management system, denials were not processed during the application window and were instead flagged and set aside to be processed after the final eligibility check. Client advisors began formally denying these applications after the official launch of the benefit and had completed this undertaking by the end of March 2021.

Re-determinations and appeals

Scottish Child Payment applicants can ask Social Security Scotland to look again at what they have decided if their application is denied, or if they think the amount they are going to be paid is wrong. This is known as a re-determination. A request for a re-determination should be made within 31 calendar days of being notified of the determination. This is extended to up to 1 year under extenuating circumstances. Social Security Scotland then has 16 working days to make the new determination. Scottish Child Payment applicants also have the right to appeal to a Tribunal if they do not agree with Social Security Scotland’s re-determination, or if Social Security Scotland is not able to make a re-determination within 16 working days.

Social Security Scotland has a working agreement that allows it to offer an extension of 5 days to clients should they be waiting on documentation/evidence being sent in. This is to allow Social Security Scotland to process a client application rather than make a decision without any evidence.

Coronavirus (Scotland) Act 2020

On 1 April 2020, the Scottish Parliament approved emergency legislation to help businesses, public services and people through the Covid-19 pandemic.
Measures include helping to ensure that Social Security Scotland clients are not disadvantaged as a result of the coronavirus outbreak and are able to claim assistance to which they are entitled and which they may have missed out on if late applications were not allowed.

Changes, which came into force on 7 April 2020, include temporarily relaxing certain time limits. Where original time limits have not been met directly as a result of Covid-19, the measures temporarily relax time limits in relation to:

- Making an application for assistance
- A request by a client for a re-determination
- A decision on a re-determination
- Appealing to the First tier Tribunal

Additionally, the Coronavirus (Scotland) 2020 Act provides Social Security Scotland extra time to complete a re-determination. Social Security Scotland will continue to make all re-determinations as quickly as is possible under the circumstances, as the Act requires Social Security Scotland to make the re-determination as soon as reasonably practicable within a new extended timescale of an additional 9 weeks on top of the current 16 working days. The temporary extension to the deadline for Social Security Scotland to process re-determinations expired for new re-determination requests on 30 September 2021.

About the data

How the data is collected

The data in this publication is sourced from Social Security Scotland’s case management system. The system holds information on all applications received, decisions and payments. Data about the applicant, their partner, and their children is collected through the online application form or is entered by client advisors during telephone applications or processing of paper applications. Information about the application outcome and payments is created in the case management system as an application is processed.

The information is held across multiple tables within the system. 100% extracts of administrative data are taken from this system every day for internal reporting purposes. Data cuts combine information from the different tables in the system into one daily extract which includes details of all Scottish Child Payment applications made since 9 November 2020. An additional child extract containing details about children listed in the application forms is also available for reporting purposes. A payments extract which contains information on the financial aspects of applications is used for calculations in this publication.
To take into account backdating and delays between applications being authorised and payments being made, a data cut from 1 November 2021 has been used to produce statistics on applications received and decisions made up to 11.59 pm on 30 September 2021. Later data cuts may include retrospective changes to application details, including corrections to details in the case management system, and changes that have resulted from re-determinations and appeals.

When a re-determination or appeal is requested, the data in this publication will show the decision date, outcome, payment date and payment value after a re-determination or appeal has been decided. Where a re-determination or appeal has been requested but not decided, decision date, outcome, payment date and payment value will be updated to reflect information about the re-determination or appeal, rather than the original application.

Detailed re-determinations and appeals management information is collected manually by the Client Experience team at Social Security Scotland. This management information has been used to produce statistics on the number of re-determination requests received and decided up to 23:59 on 30 September 2021.

Within our statistical reporting, key dates are used to assign applications received, applications processed and payments issued to time periods. This is a different methodology to that used in financial reporting and, as a result, there may be differences in the values reported for a given time period.

Quality assurance

The data used to produce official statistics are the same as the data extracted from the case management system on a daily basis that is used for internal reporting within Social Security Scotland. As such, the data is checked daily for consistency with previous extracts (i.e. do applications, decisions and payments figures increase as expected over time, and are they in proportion to each other) and compared to other sources of information such as the number of payment instructions reported by the finance team.

Additional quality assurance and cleaning has been carried out on the variables used in the official statistics to:

- check for duplicate and missing application references
- check application dates, processing times and payment times are within the expected ranges
- check that payment date is present where a payment value is present
- check applicant dates of birth are within the expected range – see Age of applicant section
- check postcodes that do not match to local authorities – see Geography section

- remove of a small number of test applications which were used to test the case management system.

Once the data is aggregated and copied into the publication and supporting Excel tables, the final statistics are quality assured by a different member of the statistics team. The final documents are checked by the lead statistician.

Revisions

Each updated publication of Scottish Child Payment statistics can include revisions of numbers of applications received, processed, processing times and payment values going back to November 2020. This is because each time figures are published they will be based from a new 100% data cut from the case management system, which can include retrospective changes to data going back to November 2020 as described in the How the data is collected section. More recent months tend to be subject to a greater degree of revision than more distant ones.

Compared to the previous publication, there has been an increase in number of applications received and processed between January and June 2021 which is reflected in Table 1 and Table 2 of the publication tables. Additionally, there are minor revisions across this time period relating to processing times, which can be seen in Table 5.

Methodology and definitions

Number of clients to have benefited at least one Scottish Child Payment

The total number of clients to have benefitted from Scottish Child Payment is calculated by summing up the number of unique individuals who have received at least one Scottish Child Payment since the benefit launched on 15 February 2021.

Number of children to have benefited at least one Scottish Child Payment

Following a review of the underlying data and methods used to calculate this statistic, a decision was taken to remove it from the publication tables from November 2021 onwards.

The total number children to have benefited from Scottish Child Payment is estimated by calculating the number of children attached to a paid application who were under the age of six at the time the application was received. This ensures that any child who received a payment before subsequently becoming ineligible (e.g. if the child turned six shortly after receiving a payment) is counted.
The process of estimating this figure involves merging the primary application data extract with a child extract containing details of all children listed in the application form. As part of ongoing efforts to continually monitor and improve the methodologies used, it became apparent that clients could add additional children to existing live cases without submitting a new application form by using an online Change of Circumstance portal, making it possible that children who are not captured in this statistic have received payment. No information on the number of such children is captured in the available data extracts which makes it difficult to estimate the scale of this underestimation.

The child extract is also known to contain a small number of duplicate records of children and so to avoid the risk of double counting any children and overestimating the number of children who have benefited from Scottish Child Payment, a decision was made to retain only one instance of any child record with the same application reference, adult National Insurance number and child date of birth. As a result, any potential instances of multiple birth e.g. twins or triplets, are counted as one child.

For transparency, the ‘number of children to have benefit from at least one Scottish Child Payment’ will continue to be published in the background notes, however it should be noted that this figure should be thought of as a minimum rather than a total and as such caution is advised when considering using it.

According to the available data, the number of children to benefit from at least one Scottish Child Payment as of 30 September 2021 is (at least) 116,690.

Number of children in receipt of Scottish Child Payment (caseload)

By definition the two measures described above are cumulative figures, meaning they will continue to increase as new clients and children receive Scottish Child Payment for the first time but they do not provide any information about how many of those clients or children remain eligible to receive the benefit.

In order to more accurately reflect the active caseload for Scottish Child Payment, it is important to take into account the flows in both directions, i.e. include any new children who are receiving the benefit, and exclude children who are no longer eligible.

Clients can add additional children to an existing claim without needing to submit a new application form, by using the online Change of Circumstance portal. Furthermore, it is possible for new Scottish Child Payment applications to be approved which do not lead in an additional client payment if for example, the client is already in receipt of the benefit and has applied for Best Start Grant via the joint application form which allows clients to apply for both benefits at once. This means there are limitations to using only application levels to estimate the number of children in receipt of Scottish Child Payment.

The estimated caseload, or number of children receipt of Scottish Child Payment, reported in this publication is estimated by calculating the total value of payments... made in the final 28-day interval of the current reporting period, and dividing by £40 – i.e. the value paid to cover a four week period for one child. A 28-day period is chosen because payments are made to clients every four weeks from the day they receive their first Scottish Child Payment. This choice ensures that the total value of payments does not include more than one payment being made to any given client.

This measure provides users with a greater understanding of how many children are actively benefiting from Scottish Child Payment. There are however a few limitations with the chosen methodology:

- A true point-in-time measure of the number of children in receipt of Scottish Child Payment on the final day of the publication reporting period may differ to the derived figure presented in this publication. For example, it is possible that some of the children paid in the last 28 days are no longer eligible on the final day of the reporting period. Equally, it is possible that some children may had recently been approved for the benefit but had not yet received their first payment by the end of the reporting period.
- By dividing by £40, it is assumed that all children being paid are eligible for the entire cover period of their latest payment, however it is possible that a child was due to turn six within the payment cover period and was therefore paid less than the full £40.

For these reasons the decision has been made to round the derived estimate of children in receipt of Scottish Child Payment to the nearest thousand.

Data Quality

Rounding and disclosure control

Application and outcome figures have been rounded to the nearest five for disclosure control. Data has been suppressed where it would disclose fewer than five applications or payments.

Quality assurance checks highlighted that a small number of cases (50) had an application date prior to the benefit opening for applications on 9 November 2020. These cases were confirmed by operational colleagues to be genuine applications with an application date entered in error. For the purpose of this publication these cases have been reported as having been received in the month of November 2020.

Missing and duplicate applications

The data comes from a 100% data cut of the case management system.
The data cut was checked for applications where the field relating to application date and the outcome and payment of the application was blank. These applications represent temporary ‘prospect cases’, which are created when clients contact Social Security Scotland without a National Insurance number, and are later replaced once a National Insurance number is received from the applicant. Any such applications are therefore duplicates and are excluded from the statistics.

Unverified information from application form

Information about the client and their children is taken from the application form completed by the client or by a client advisor over the telephone. This information may contain errors because it has not been verified by comparison to other sources of information such as records held by the Department for Work and Pensions. This means for example that it is possible to have authorised applications where the original application form did not include details of any eligible children, because the date of birth of any children was originally incorrect but was later amended as the application was processed.

Application authorisation and payment

To manage the anticipated demand, Scottish Child Payment opened for applications from 9 November 2020, ahead of its official launch on 15 February 2021. Anyone applying for Scottish Child Payment in this application window was made aware that they would not receive a decision until after 15 February 2021, and that the first payments would be made to clients from the end of February 2021 onwards.

Throughout the application window, client advisors began processing applications subject to an eligibility check on 15 February. The outcomes of all applications processed during this time were temporary and subject to change until the benefit officially launched and a final check was carried out to establish the entitlement for each case.

If a client advisor assessed an application and processed it as approved – subject to an automatic eligibility check on 15 February – then the month of decision would reflect the month the client advisor originally processed the application. This is why there are applications attributed to the months before the official launch of the benefit throughout this publication.

If a client advisor assessed an application as a denial – subject to the final check on 15 February – then the application was flagged but not processed. Due to the design of Social Security Scotland’s case management system, these applications had to be formally denied on or after the 15 February to avoid denial letters being issued to clients before the final eligibility check had taken place. This is why there are no processed denials in the months before the official launch of the benefit.
For all applications, the date that applications were processed by client advisors is the date used to produce statistics of processed applications by month. After applications are authorised for payment by client advisors, the decision is approved by a manager, and then a payment is issued. In some cases, payments will be issued on the same day that payments are authorised by client advisors, however in other cases there can be a delay before payments are issued. Clients should receive money in their nominated account within four working days after payment is issued.

In this publication, we report on the value of payments that have been issued by the end of each month and not the payments successfully received by the applicants.

Application channel

Application channel is automatically entered into the case management system for online applications, and manually entered for applications taken by phone or paper. If ever an application channel has been manually entered incorrectly, the application channel will be classed as ‘unknown’.

Age of applicant

In a small number of cases the date of birth of the child or the application date has been entered in the parent date of birth field in the case management system. In these cases the date of birth of the parent has been changed to ‘unknown’. Further dates of birth of the parent showed very young ages. For these applicants, we have assumed that the dates contained typographical errors and have classed age as ‘unknown’, although we cannot be certain that their date of birth contained an error.

Geography

Applications are assigned to local authority by postcode using a Scottish Government lookup file. For some applications, the postcode will not match to the lookup file. This can be because the postcode is not in a Scottish local authority, or because the postcode has been introduced too recently to appear on the lookup file, for example if a property is in a new development. For postcodes that could not be matched to a Scottish local authority, the postcode area was used to check whether the postcode was in Scotland or elsewhere. Non-matching postcodes from Scottish border postcode areas (postcodes starting ‘DG’ and ‘TD’) were also checked individually and assigned to Scottish local authorities as ‘non-Scottish postcodes’ manually.

Postcodes are linked to client profiles and data extracts are automatically updated in the case of a client changing address. As a result, postcodes reflect the latest address of clients and may not be the same as the address at the time of application. Therefore a small number of addresses may not reflect the correct local authority at the time of application, decision or payment.
A small number of applications did not include address information and therefore could not be matched to a local authority or country.

Effect of re-determinations

Application decision dates, outcomes and payment amounts are updated to reflect information about re-determinations and appeals as described in the How the data is collected section. Information in tables about decisions, outcomes and payments should therefore be viewed as the final decision, outcome and payment value, after a re-determination request or appeal has been received and/or decided. This excludes the processing times table, where applications with re-determinations and appeals have been removed from the processing times calculations.

Processing time

Processing time is the number of days from the application being received to a decision being made or the application being withdrawn. It includes time spent waiting to receive evidence from clients through online upload or by post, but does not include additional time to make payments. It is calculated in working days. Weekends and public holidays are excluded from calculations, even if applications were processed by staff working overtime on these days. The time of day that an application was received or processed is not taken into account.

Processing times for any Scottish Child Payment applications processed during the application window are calculated between the application date and the date the client advisor processed the application – meaning they do not include the final automatic eligibility check that was undertaken when the benefit officially launched on 15 February 2021.

Processing times data does not include any applications that are flagged as having had a re-determination request because the decision date for these applications will represent the re-determination decision date, which can be some time after the original decision date. The number of applications in the processing times table is therefore lower than the number of applications shown as processed or decided in other tables.

Re-determinations are a small proportion of the total applications processed, and the average processing times for applications that go on to re-determination or appeal compared to other applications should not differ from all other applications. Therefore, removal of these should not impact the average processing times shown in the table.

Processing time is only calculated for applications that were decided within the period being reported on. Data is presented by the month of decision rather than month the application was received.
